

Managing Your Mental Health Online During Covid-19

There have been many changes to our lives due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

These changes can affect our mental health and wellbeing. Some people may be dealing with existing mental health problems and others may be feeling anxious or depressed due to new concerns.

There are many services that can help. You may wish to speak to a GP or mental health professional.

There are also other ways to get help on a phone, computer or tablet. These include crisis and counselling services, and mental health treatments that have been converted into web programs or apps. Some services link users to a practitioner who acts as a coach or guide and tracks their progress as they use a web program. Others—"self-guided" ones—are for people who prefer to work on their own. Most of these programs and services are free. We have listed them below.

A great thing about these services is that most are available over extended hours. Crisis services, programs and apps can be used at any time. And they are not just for people with mental health diagnoses—they are for anyone who is facing some problems.

Head to Health

A good place to start looking is the Australian Government's digital mental health gateway.

Head to Health

Head to Health is the Australian Government's searchable portal that brings together information, apps, online programs, online forums, and phone services from Australia's most trusted mental health organisations. Whether you're searching for mental health information for yourself or someone else, or just wanting tips on how to maintain your self-care and wellbeing, Head to Health is the place to start.

MindSpot

Australia's free national online mental health clinic: Assessment and treatment that is supported by psychologists.

MindSpot is the Australian Government's free online mental health clinic for Australian adults who are experiencing difficulties with anxiety, stress, depression and low mood. MindSpot provides assessment and treatment courses, or they can help you find local services that can help.
