

E-MENTAL HEALTH RESOURCES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Is an e-mental health (eMH) resource suitable for your client?

Some questions to consider when working with eMH:

What does the resource offer?

- > What are the potential benefits?
- > Does it meet individual needs? (eg content relevance, age appropriateness, literacy level)
- > Are there limitations/risks?
- > What are the requirements? (eg cost, terms and conditions of service, type of device needed)

What delivery model will you adopt?

- > A referral for self-help or therapist-assisted program?
- > Will you use eMH to support work done in sessions?
- > Will you work through eMH in sessions?
- > What provisions will be made for follow-up?

Finding e-Mental Health Resources for Young People

Young people concerned about mental health are increasingly turning to the internet for help. Allied health professionals can provide important guidance to help young people find safe, credible e-Mental Health resources.

e-MH resources can help young people identify problems, work out which interventions might suit them and tackle the uncertainty, fear and stigma that can hinder help-seeking.

e-MH intervention programs can teach young people how to tackle symptoms of anxiety and depression and improve resilience and coping skills. These programs draw on evidenced-based therapies such as cognitive behaviour therapy, and can be self-help and/or therapist-assisted.

The e-MH services and programs described here are free unless otherwise stated. Many can be used anonymously and many are 24/7. e-MH is flexible and can be used before, during and after other forms of treatment.
